Defining Competency-Based Questions Competency-based interview questions, also known as behavioral or situational questions, focus on how candidates have handled specific work situations in the past or how they would approach hypothetical scenarios. How These Questions Work Typically, candidates are prompted with questions such as, "Tell me about a time when you…" or "Describe a situation where you…" followed by a request for details about the context, actions taken, and results achieved. The STAR method (Situation, Task, Action, Result) is frequently recommended to structure responses clearly and concisely. Questions may probe your ability to convey ideas clearly, listen actively, and adapt messaging to different audiences. Sample question: "Can you give an example of a time when you had to communicate complex information to a non-expert?" 2. Teamwork and Collaboration Given the UN's emphasis on working across borders and cultures, teamwork competency is critical. Questions assess your ability to build relationships, resolve conflicts, and contribute to collective goals. Common Structures and Approaches to Answering UN Competency Questions The STAR Technique A widely recommended method to craft compelling responses is the STAR framework, which ensures that answers are structured, focused, and impactful: - Situation: Set the context by describing the background. - Task: Explain the specific challenge or responsibility. - Action: Detail the steps you took to address the situation. - Result: Share the outcome and what you learned. Example: Question: "Tell me about a time when you had to resolve a conflict within your team." Response: Situation: In my previous role, two team members had a disagreement affecting project progress. Task: My responsibility was to mediate and restore team cohesion.
